[FRANCHISEES AND TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER]

Thoroughness and quality control in technology transfer

ISEOR has implemented and developed a network of franchised consultants authorized to use the socio-economic intervention method under the ISEOR banner.

This network exists to help with the ISEOR policy of disseminating new strategic management practices by providing a greater sample size of companies and organizations who enjoy the benefits of the ISEOR method.

By practicing innovative interventions within companies and organizations, the franchised consultant participates in the

- transfer of experience in socio-economic management engineering and its ongoing refinement to companies
- methodical support to companies undergoing change

- ongoing input to the research centre's scientific and technical capital (enrichment of its knowledge and data bases).

Thanks to his endorsement by an internationally reputed research centre, the franchised consultant enjoys

- thorough quality control
- ongoing training and improvement
- competitive advantages in the consultancy market

Partnership for a socio-economic policy for proper employment

- The ILO is interested in ISEOR's work because it deals with universal issues affecting social standards, especially
 - training
 - employment
 - illiteracy
 - qualifications
 - discrimination
 - health and safety at work
 - working conditions
 - remunerations
 - real wages

• The ILO considers the concept of socio-economic management to be a contribution toward resolving these issues.

"Full development of the human resource potential that a person represents through his/her contact and collaboration with his/her working colleagues is at the very least initiated. The spirit of participation feeds on personal interest, widely and concretely understood: service to the company converges with service to all the people it unites.

That's the hope put forward by Henri Savall when recommending use of the "periodically negotiable activity contract", which when faithfully followed and in the best cases (1), will raise work in dignity from instructed to freely consented".

(1) Routine optimism based on poor information has no place in Henri Savall's mindset.

Development of sustainable financial and social performance

ISEOR practises widespread intervention in Belgian and Walloon companies and organizations.

Application of the ISEOR socio-economic method has been the subject of intense investment in Belgium since the 1990s.

- Yearly ISEOR symposium: «Modernization of public services - public/private partnership», organized in partnership with FOREM in November 2007, the latter having published an article in his magazine on the socio-economic management implemented in the Paul Bocuse Institute.

Le magazine du Forem - 1 Trimestriel - 1 Avril/mai/juin 2008 - 1 Numéro 18

In the Paul Bocuse Institute, cooking and management are good housemates.

Testimony from the Paul Bocuse Institute's general manager Hervé Fleury, who has been applying ISEOR socio-economic management methods since 2006. Extracts from the article written in "Regards", the Forem (Belgium) magazine, June 2008.

"The socio-economic model seems compatible with our objectives. We started from the principle that to obtain quality training, we must count on effective teachers who are totally dedicated and available passing on their know-how and teaching. Furthermore, to plan what we do with our employees for the next 10 years, we must unite all the actors around a common project. The way the ISEOR model takes account of management in both its social and financial aspects pleased me ... in so far as it proposes a return on investment based on the search for hidden costs caused by organizational dysfunctions. The ISEOR method begins with an audit and a financial assessment of dysfunctions. This requires gaining employees' confidence so they feel able to explain which practices cause problems, and it requires determination from the manager, who must be able to keep on listening. The exercise provided the basis for an excellent reappraisal of the whole organization.

Besides this initial audit, the socio-economic model comprises a battery of tools, since progress must be accompanied by measurement of performance. The tools developed by ISEOR might at first sight seem subtle and complex. There are three basic concepts in socio-economic management: quality, quantity, and economy. Each must be routinely taken into account.

Some of the changes we have implemented are the monitoring of the organization and the coordination of training, which showed a quality deficiency due to excessive tasks being entrusted to a single team. We therefore decided to share the tasks out differently. This provided a gain in effectiveness and in the quality of accompaniment.

Change has not been easily accepted by employees. Some of the team experienced it as a kind of dispossession. In January, 2008, we implemented the "Periodically Negotiated Activity Contract" affecting all employees. Each of them put forward an action plan which was then officially validated. Depending on the financial results of this (based on measurable criteria), the employee can enjoy a bonus of up to 5% of his yearly pay. I started by upholding the principle that this bonus must not represent an extra cost for the company, rather a gain linked to the elimination of dysfunctions. The elimination of such dysfunctions produces added effectiveness, added economy, added motivation, and in the end, added overall quality, with impact in both the financial and social realms. To conclude, these tools became common to all staff. Every time we implement an action, we calculate the financial balance (financial consequences versus measurable consequences of the action on quality and quantity). Certain tools are even transferred (as far as methods go) to our students. Thus second year students, one of whose tasks is to create a project, have drawn up a competency grid showing which shortcomings must be taken care of. It's a lot easier to conduct a project when strengths and weaknesses are known."

Publications

- Several works entirely dedicated to socio-economic management have appeared in both the USA and France
- In the USA, works relating to the socio-economic theory were first taken account of in 1981, with the first publication of Henri Savall's doctoral dissertation "Work and People: a financial Assessment of Job Enrichment", preface by H.I. Ansoff (founder of the "strategic management" concept). Published by Oxford University Press of New York, this is a translation of his 1974 complementary thesis sponsored by the University of Paris-Dauphine and published in French by Editions Dunod and titled "Enriching human work in companies and organizations".

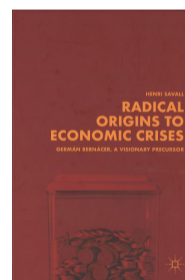

- The second step was broached when Prof. David Boje (NMS University, USA), manager of the prestigious "Journal of Organizational Change Management" review, Emerald, 2003, dedicated a special edition (very rare for a theory coming from outside the Anglo-Saxon world) to the socio-economic model created by Henri Savall and developed by ISEOR.

- The socio-economic model is the only management theory endorsed by the ILO (Geneva, 2000, 2008). It has been published simultaneously in English, Spanish, and French for the attention of the directors and management of small and medium sized companies.

In the current crisis context, capitalism is questioned by its detractors or defended by its partisans. The concept of Socially Responsible Capitalism (SRC) is based on the

The idea for this book was born out of a meeting with Professor Anthony Buono (Bentley College, Boston, USA) initiated by ISEOR. Given the non-existence of any work similar to ISEOR's in the USA, Prof. Anthony Buono proposed writing and coordinating the publication of this book. It is therefore the result of an audacious strategy named "Operation Lafayette", which inspired collaboration between ISEOR and American academics through a scientific dialogue based on original ISEOR research and not on the application of Anglo-Saxon models. This original book comprises 18 previously unpublished chapters dedicated to topics and cases in different private and public business sectors: four were written by American professors, one by a Mexican professor, and thirteen by ISEOR teacher-researchers.

This book is the English translation of a work by Henri Savall and Veronique Zardet titled (translation) "Controlling hidden costs/performance" and published in 1987 by Financialia (Harvard Prize for Expansion of Strategic Management). The preface is written by Prof. Anthony Buono of the University of Bentley College, Boston, USA. This book is the first of a series on Management Research and consultancy. In the light of the numerous problems a companies face, the idea is to be able to provide solutions in the field of change management by the application of socio-economic management. Through this work, teacher-researchers, independent consultants, and company directors can find explanations and answers to the problems of governance and conducting change.
